Welcome to Study Overseas

Every year, we send thousands of students to spend a semester or a year studying in a foreign country. Our students get to experience the culture of another country while they attend a local high school and live with a host family. Read on for this week's country profile.

Country Profile: New Zealand

Auckland-New Zealand

New Zealand is a great place to study overseas. New Zealanders (known as “Kiwis”) are typically active people and have a great love of adventure and the outdoors. The North Island of New Zealand offers great beaches and volcanoes, while the South Island has wild mountains and glaciers as well as activities like swimming with dolphins or watching whales.

New Zealand culture has its roots in two worlds: the European and the indigenous Maori cultures. English is the official language, but people use many Maori words in everyday conversation and the names of many streets and other places are in Maori too. Maori culture is also very visible in New Zealand fashion, jewelry, and art.

Study Overseas students live with a host family and attend a local high school. Many host families live in rural areas, and students have to help their families with things like feeding animals, milking cows, and making hay. It is common for children and parents in New Zealand to share the housework, and most families have pets. One thing to remember: if you are living in an isolated area, you will have to depend on other people for transportation to get into town or even to visit friends.

Otago-New Zealand

Most teenagers in New Zealand play some kind of sport. The most popular sports are rugby, cricket, soccer, basketball, and hockey. The dream of many athletes in New Zealand is to one day play for the national team, called the "All Blacks" because of the color of the players' shirts and shorts.

People in New Zealand generally eat three meals a day. Breakfast is usually something like cereal with milk, fruit, and toast with jam or honey. Some families may have a cooked breakfast of bacon and eggs. On school days, most students take a packed lunch. The main meal is dinner, when most families eat meat, fish, or chicken with potatoes, pasta or rice, and vegetables or salad.

On the weekends, a lot of New Zealanders have a barbecue at home, and they invite friends over. For special occasions, some families make a hangi, which is a traditional Maori dish of meat and vegetables cooked in an underground oven. Your family will ask you about the foods you like, but remember that host families do not get paid for hosting you. Discuss your preferences or tell them about any foods you cannot eat for health reasons, but you must remember that you are not staying in a hotel!

At school, you will study English, math, art, and science—and you will have the chance to take extra courses like tourism and catering. You will also be allowed to join in extra-curricular activities like sports clubs, drama groups, and music. You should try to take part in as many of these activities as possible, as they are a good way to meet people. Kiwis are generally very relaxed and informal, and most Study Overseas students find it very easy to make friends at school. The school year starts in late January and ends in early December.

There is an eight-week Christmas holiday, which coincides with the New Zealand summer. A typical school day starts at 8:45 and ends around 3:30. Nearly all schools in New Zealand require students to wear a school uniform.

Requirements

To participate in a Study Overseas program, you must meet certain requirements. You must:

- be between 16 and 18 years old.
- have a passport valid for at least one year.
- be in good mental and physical health.
- have passed all your school subjects.
- have an open mind and be willing to adapt to a new culture and lifestyle.

Logistics

Once you are accepted onto the program, you will receive an e-mail with details of your host family and school. You should contact the New Zealand embassy at that point and arrange a study visa. You will not be allowed to enter the country without this visa. Study Overseas organizes a two-day orientation course before departure; you do not have to attend, but you ought to try it as it gives you the opportunity to meet other Study Overseas students and ask any questions you may have. Your host family will meet you at the airport when you arrive.

We look forward to welcoming you to our program!
